XM Radio has filled a void that normal terrestrial broadcasters failed by providing a clean clear digital signal. The addition of local traffic and weather on demand for paid subscribers is a natural extension of their paid services and should not be restricted. Their service continuously updates so you can get the information when you need it and return to other listening choices once you have it. Let XM's free enterprise efforts prevail. Don't fold to the pressures of those who were not interested to take the financial risks XM took which has provided us with such a rich alternative to terrestrial broadcast radio.
